The President Campaign—General Grant.

THERE are many indications that the Presidential campaign is about to become enlivened by the strenuous and active exertions of the partisans on both sides. The Republicans are beginning to realize that, notwithstanding the deserved popularity of their candidates, the justice of their cause, and the objectionable character of the principles, the platform, and the avowed objects of the Democratic party, it will be at least prudent, if not necessary, to make an earnest effort to achieve the great political victory demanded by the highest interests of the nation.

The Republicans possess an immense advantage in their Presidential nominee. If no parties had ever existed, any man who had rendered such services as have signalled the brilliant career of General Grant, would become the unanimous choice of the Electoral College. It is a cheering and an encouraging fact that his two great military predecessors, Washington and Jackson, were scarcely less distinguished for their civil than their warlike services, and that they stand foremost on the roll of American Presidents for popularity and usefulness.

The leading features in General Grant's career are universally known. He rose from an obscure position in which he learned the real wants and sentiments of the people by sharing their struggles and privations, and step by step of his advancement was manifestly due to superior energy and capacity displayed in trying emergencies. His temporary retirement from the army and struggles to gain a livelihood as a farmer, wood-cutter or tanner, while they provoke the sneers of the aristocratic organs of the Democracy, tend to endear him to the mass of voters by the practical proof they afford of his familiarity with their condition and necessities.

He cannot boast, like Seymour, of a long line of luxurious ancestors, but his experiences combine the most arduous, varied, and perilous military service at frontier posts, in Mexico, and in every form of attack against the Rebellion, with an arduous struggle against adverse fortune in the battle of life as a civilian, as well as the severe training in political affairs which necessarily resulted from his position during the last three years at Washington, while the reconstruction policy of the nation was being established.

While the general features of his unparalleled career are well known, the war was so pregnant with great events that the people have scarcely yet had time to fully comprehend in detail the many difficulties he surmounted and the extraordinary qualities he displayed. As they are gradually brought to light by the researches of his biographers, thousands of interesting incidents are related which, although each may be of comparative insignificance in itself, shed, in the aggregate, new lustre upon the brilliancy of his fame.

THE RAILWAYS OF INDIA.—From recently published statistics of the Indian railways it appears that last year they yielded a net revenue of $1,885,000. The total guarantee of the British Government is $16,189,685, but as the companies paid $12,500,000, only about $3,689,685 was paid by the Government.

Victor Hugo, it would appear from a communication to a New York weekly paper written by "the most respectful of his sons," is in a quandary. He is now engaged on the last chapters of a new novel, which he expects to complete soon; and yet, with all his ingenuity, he is unable to devise a striking title. He is halting between "The Man who Laughs," and "By Order of the King," the first of which is regarded by "the most respectful of sons" as the most philosophical, the second as the most dramatic—the first as giving the best idea of the book, the second as the best resume of its action.

YACHTS.—A number of American yachtsmen went over to Europe and challenged all the world to race their yacht Sappho. They flung down the gauntlet to all creation, and waited for some one to take it up. They did not have to wait long. A number came forward. Three English clubs accepted the challenge, and the race came off yesterday. The sequel will not cause ecstatic joy on this side of the waters. The Sappho came in last of all, being beaten by all its competitors. We really cannot help but think that before learns tries to fly he had better be sure of his wings. It was undoubtedly bombastic to issue such a challenge as did the owners of the Sappho, and as long as such arrant bravado is displayed we do not feel much sympathy for the defeated.

THE OPERA ABROAD.—We are told by some French papers that Madlle Nilsson has demanded of M. Perrin, as the conditions of a renewal of her engagement, 180,000 francs, and three months' leave or congé. The English papers hope Madlle Nilsson may get the money and the leave—especially the leave.

THE EQUALITY OF SECESSION AND COERCION.—Mr. Seymour said, at Treedle Hall, in Albany, in a speech delivered by him, that "successful coercion by the North" was no less revolutionary "than successful secession by the South." These are the sentiments of the man whom we are called upon to trust with the rudder of the ship of State, with the almost absolute despotism of the national life. Suppose, holding as he does these views, the South should attempt to incite another rebellion—a supposition, alas! too probable—and Seymour should be President, where would our nation be? It were better to have Mr. Buchanan at the helm in such an emergency than to give it into the hands of one who declares such atrocious doctrines.

SWORN IN.—Yesterday, before a United States Commissioner, Hon. John P. O'Neill was sworn in as United States District Attorney for Eastern Pennsylvania. By going before a Commissioner and not before Judge Caldwell, we suppose that Mr. O'Neill has avoided all the little unpleasantness which would have ensued had the Judge deemed it prudent to continue his refusal. It is said that Mr. Gilpin does not recognize the propriety of the appointment of his successor, and will refuse to surrender the office. What will be the issue we cannot tell, but it is of interest to know who will prosecute the fraudulent distillers meanwhile—both the District Attorneys or neither?

THE PROSPECT IN INDIANA.—General Carl Schurz has finished his tour in Indiana. He gives a very encouraging account of things there. In the close and Democratic counties and districts, our friends are thoroughly alive and hard at work, and are everywhere gaining. The strong Republican counties and districts are less fully aroused, and, assured of success in their local tickets, they do not yet feel the importance of swelling the majority for the State ticket as far as possible, but he believes that this over-confidence will be supplanted by thorough and determined zeal as the last month of the canvass opens. The large gains, already apparent, give strong ground for belief that the State can be carried by faithful effort.

THE CATHOLIC PAPERS which speak of the sectarianism of the Republican party, seem to forget that two of the most important diplomatic appointments recently confirmed by the Republican Senate were Roman Catholics. These were the appointments of General Rosecrans, as Minister to Mexico, and General McMahon as Minister to Paraguay.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC. THE CITY THEATRES.—Tais evening The White Swan will be repeated at the Chesnut; Leffing will continue his burlesques of "Boppo" and "Romeo Jailer Jenkins" at the Walnut; and the usual variety will be presented at the American.

in doubt as to whether he shall venture across the Atlantic, and the stockholders of the New York Academy of Music will be invited to subscribe a guarantee fund before the enterprise is undertaken. It is announced that the company will include Tietjens, Miss Kellogg, Madlle Sincio, the tenors Ferranti and Bollerini, and possibly the baritone Santley—a strong combination, as far as it goes, but scarcely equal to all the requirements of the public taste. Kellogg and Tietjens would be received with universal applause; but no one of the great masterpieces could be put upon the stage in a creditable manner with such leading artists without a strong and efficient support.

THE TROUPE OF WHICH Madame Parepa-Rosa is the head and front have been remarkably successful in their concert enterprise in California; and they are now about venturing into the more precarious field of opera. On the first instant they were to have opened for a season of twenty-five nights at the Metropolitan Theatre, San Francisco, provided that four hundred seats, at two dollars each, were subscribed for beforehand. In the Company are such names as those of Madame Parepa-Rosa and Madame Luisa De Ponte, soprano; Madame Natal Testa, contralto; Massimiliani, Testa, and Brockhouse Bowler, tenors; Mancusi, baritone; Ferranti, buffo; and Sarti, basso; under the leadership of Messrs. Carl Rosa and George T. Evans.

THE ENGLISH OPERA COMPANY engaged by Mr. Samuel Colville, for Wood's Museum, in New York, will make their first appearance at a matinee on Monday afternoon next, August 31. The company includes Misses Susan and Blanche Galtou, nieces of Louisa Fyne, Mr. Susan Fyne Galtou, a sister of Miss Fyne; Mr. Charles Whiffles, tenor; and Mr. Cox, baritone. Miss Susan Galtou's performance abroad is thus spoken of by the London Era:—"The new operatic extravaganza was produced here last evening, under the familiar title of Blue Beard, this being the first time on which an opera bouffe of such dimensions has been attempted on an English stage. The Miss Susan Galtou the operatic weight chiefly falls; and the freshness of the acting, and strong and correct style of the most promising vocalists, caused the burden to fall very lightly. Miss Galtou was throughout warmly applauded, and perfectly secured her position as the heroine of the night. Charles Whiffles is a very model of an operatic singer. Her expression and beautiful face, her petite and elegant figure, her charming voice, her sweet and brilliant execution, form a combination of valuable gifts and graces of which few can boast."

CLOTHING.

THE WICKED FLEA. Last night a wicked little flea Begun to bite and bother me. Unconsciously he'd bit me— Then jump away with all his might, And then with all his might and main, He'd jump directly back again! Oh! how his bites tormented me! The lively, poisonous little flea! He jumped about, so smart and fast, And yet I caught the flea at last! Bewixt my finger and my thumb I crushed him—then his time was come! I smothered his sides, squeezed out his breath, And gently put the flea to death. And so I slew the wicked flea, That came to bite and bother me. There are 92 more verses, much like the above, but we have now poured the matter far enough, and these will do for the present. The conclusion of the thing is, that all active men ought to jump round a once, and get new clothes at the magnificent BROWN STONE HALL OF ROCKHILL & WILSON, Nos. 608 and 606 CHESNUT STREET, 411 1/2 PHILADELPHIA.
